Sarah's grief is compounded by the fact that she has always felt like an outsider. She is the only black girl in her small town, and she has always felt different from her peers. After her grandmother's death, Sarah feels even more alone and isolated. She withdraws from her friends and family, and she begins to lose hope for the future.

One day, Sarah meets a young man named David. David is a kind and compassionate man, and he helps Sarah to open up about her grief. David also helps Sarah to see that she is not alone, and that there are people who care about her. With David's help, Sarah begins to heal her broken heart and to find hope for the future.

Her Favorite Color Was Yellow is a powerful and moving novel about the power of love, loss, and hope. Sarah's journey is one that will resonate with readers of all ages. The novel is beautifully written, and the characters are well-developed and relatable. Her Favorite Color Was Yellow is a must-read for anyone who has ever experienced the pain of loss.
